

When letter of recommendation season hits, teachers at large high schools struggle to advocate for a sea of students they just don't know very well, and students find connecting intimidating.

Gloo is here to bridge the gap! Teachers create and share office hours to invite students to connect, and students find AI recommended mentors based on common interests.

To keep connections from getting lost, users keep track of their interactions in personal journals.

Here at Gloo, we're making student-teacher connections that stick!
